“ Alfonso became part of my life when he was a teenager. He lived in our home in Darlington and quickly become part of my family. My husband and I watched this teenager transform into an incredible young man. We saw Al find his intelligence, his talent and his God given gift. He developed all of these things and broke a cycle so many people struggle to break. He became a man. He became a scholar and he became a College Graduate. I did not get to see him become a husband or a father, however, if he engaged in these roles has he had the others, there is no doubt he was incredible in both roles. Al was true testimony to never, ever give up on dreams and to work for what you want.

It is my unfortune not to have seen him grow into a husband and father. To his wife and children, you are in our hearts, thoughts and prayers and always know you do have family in Darlington, SC to lean on.

It is with great sadness that I write this today to the family of Al, I got to know "Big AL" when he played basketball at Coker..My son, Wally, and Al were friends..Al would come over to our house and he would share our meals with us..He was such a pleasure and we enjoyed his time in our home..Last week I attended a Coker game and as I sat there I was thinking of AL and then when Wally called yesterday to inform me of this tradgedy it broke my heart..It is a sad day for the Johnson household and as Wally shared on his FB page, RIP my friend..Praying for his wife, children and extended family..

“ Quetta, I want you to know that you will get through this. It will be a new normal that you will adapt too and the memories will always be there. You'll smile at some and you'll remember the ones that another facial expression came through. Still, know that God does not make mistakes and rejoice in that knowing and be glad. "Absent from the body, present with the Lord." Keep thanking God for the past, present, and future. Love you.

To the Smith family, Big Al as he was affectionly known to his adoptive family from Bishopville. The Singleton and Benjamin loved Al as one of our own. There were five of them from Coker College that stuck together and they will always share a special place in our family but most of all in our heart's. We all love you and Big Al's family. Mat GOD continue to strengthen you in the says to come. The Singleton & Benjamin Family's
