“ I was lucky to meet Clemond. He had been injured in an automobile accident, and I became his lawyer. With all the lawyers in Mt. Pleasant and Charleston, he came all the way from McClellanville to see me in North Charleston. That was special, and so was Clemond. I never thought of him as a client, because Clemond was my friend. He could always make me smile and laugh. Even though he lived in McClellanville, which seemed pretty far away from my office, my secretary, Geri Forster, and I often used to talk about him and what a kind person he was.

When I saw his obituary and picture in Sunday's newspaper, I said, "Oh, no!" and sent Geri an email to let her know. She's in Cleveland with her family for this long Presidents' Day holiday weekend. I'm sure this news will be as upsetting to her as it was to me. I told her that "another link in a chain is gone." I will really miss Clemond, and so will Geri. He was a fine person and a really nice guy. He was my friend.

My thoughts and prayers go out to him and to members of his family.
