“ He seemed bigger than life to me as a little girl and I literally "looked up" to him. He was my "big cousin" and was dearly loved. I grew up many miles away and across many bridges, but always remembered my roots and the branches of my family tree, of which he was a part. May you now rest in peace as we continue the journey. God's Speed!

“ THE POWER OF WORDS

One Saturday many years ago, a man and his son sat in the back of an old pickup truck eating boiled peanuts. The man says to the boy “You know you’re special right?” The boy replied “Why? Why am I special?” The man went on to explain to the boy how he noticed the boy talks about doing things when he got older that other kids around the neighborhood never talked about. The boy was also mature for his age. He was often in the presence of elders and enjoyed it. The man went on to tell the boy that he will be somebody someday. He went on to tell the boy he must always avoid trouble and be a much better man than he ever dreamed of being. “Dream big, try to do big things and that alone will take you places,” he said. The man continued to tell the boy about mistakes he had made in life and about his many regrets. He told the boy how sometimes he felt ashamed of himself at times and that the boy should learn from the mistakes that not only he himself will make in life, but from the mistakes of others. Especially those closest to him.

Every day of this boy’s life, he heard the words “I love you. You’re special. You’re a good boy. You make me proud” from the man. This not only made the boy feel good about himself, it elevated his confidence to the point he actually believed he was in fact “SPECIAL.” The boy began planning for his future. What would be the best way to get him to where he wanted to be in life as an adult he thought? He knew it was not just about getting good grades in school. The boy wanted to see the world. And he was encouraged by the man to do just that. The boy joined the United States Air Force and began a journey that would take him to places he never imagined. The words of the man daily to the boy, played a key role in the type of Man this boy would become.

Today that boy is the Founder and CEO of Empire International Brokers at Wall Street. He is a licensed Real Estate Broker, a Real Estate Developer, Political Contributor, Political Satirist, Freelance Writer and Producer. He has earned a Bachelor’s Degree in Marketing and another in Broadcast Journalism. He recently obtained his PPL (Private Pilot License). He is a disabled Veteran of War and Conflict. He has lived in 11 countries and visited 23. The encouraging words of the man daily were affirmations to the boy. For as a man, he never felt there was a ceiling or any limitations for him and that he could literally achieve anything in life. It all began with the power of words spoken to him daily.

That boy was me. The man: Isaiah Jerome Thompson, my father. I chuckle as I write this because I have NEVER heard my father call me by my name. I was always "Bubba." With my many titles and various nicknames given by my friends, I will forever love being referred to as simply: "Mickey's Boy." Thanks, Mick, for the words, the compassion the love. Thanks for allowing me to always be able to speak and express myself freely to you about anything. I will use the power of my words to always encourage, uplift and inspire my children. I want the world to know the significance of the role you played in my life. I am grateful that I had the chance to tell you this years ago. May you rest in peace old man. Forever Loved!
