“ Today I recall loving memories of my cousin and childhood playmate. Though separated by the years and place, the memories are as close as yesterday. While the journey of our lives began together, "two roads diverged along the way, and I took the one less traveled by. While separated we became, all roads will bring us back to home again". And if home is indeed where the heart is, I am always home whenever I think of you. May you rest in loving peace, and soar with the Angels on high.

Lovingly,
